QF32 was en route to Sydney from London after refuelling at Singapore's Changi Airport, when passengers and crew heard a loud bang shortly after take off.

Those on board the Airbus A380 were immediately aware it was bad news and the crew knew they didn't have much time to save the plane.

With the crippled jet just minutes from disaster, Capt de Crespigny, first officer Matt Hicks and second officer Mark Johnson faced a race against time to land the jet safely.
